Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Slavery was more than a state of physical bondage and chains, it was a state of mind, because slavery not only made servants out of Africans, it also taught them how to be slaves in their mind, to accept this role, mentally, and to think themselves inferior. Black people are no longer in physical bondage, but continue to be slaves in their minds. These limitations still haunt us today. Many black people still doubt their self worth, still doubt their potential, and still doubt their ability to be successful in this life. Black people are free from the chains but not in their brains. As a race, we have been programmed by the catastrophic assault on our race, slavery; and by ancestors, though free, who continued to think and act like slaves, because this was the only thing they knew. And even though at the time most of the narratives were taken, the late 1930s, and these former slaves had been free for over 60 years, their testimonies still reflect they were still slaves in their minds. Hopefully, as a people we can glean from their experience and knowledge, to enable us to shed some light on our present day situation and the crises we still face as Black people in America. It is an African tradition of listening to the Griot or the elders, who pass down the oral traditions and history of their people. As African-Americans, we have failed to continue the tradition of listening to the orators...
